"Yes, the Gates' stated plan is to reduce population growth by improving health. But the idea of using vaccinations as sterilization agents – even without the public's knowledge or consent - is not conspiracy lore, but documentable fact.

"In its 1968 annual report, the Rockefeller Foundation addressed the 'Problems of Population', lamenting that

'[v]ery little work is in progress on immunological methods, such as vaccines, to reduce fertility, and much more research is required if a solution is to be found here.'

"The Foundation vowed to correct this problem by funding

'established and beginning investigators to turn their attention to aspects of research in reproductive biology that have implications for human fertility and its control.'

"This was no empty promise. By the time of its 1988 Annual Report, the Rockefeller Foundation was able to report progress on its funding into contraceptive research, including NORPLANT, a contraceptive implanted under the skin of a woman's upper arm and effective for five years. In its 1988 report, the Rockefeller Foundation was pleased to announce that NORPLANT – which was developed by the Rockefeller-founded Population Council – was 'now approved for marketing in 12 countries.'

"The Rockefellers' Population Council and other research organizations joined with the WHO in 1972 to create a Task Force on Vaccines for Fertility Regulation. By 1995, they were able to report progress in 'developing a prototype of an anti-hCG-vaccine', which works by combining an immunogen formed from a synthetic peptide of human chorionic gonadotrophin (hCG) – a hormone secreted by the surface of the early embryo to remain implanted in the womb - with a toxoid carrier molecule. The vaccine stimulates an immune reaction, causing women to develop antibodies against the hormone, thus preventing them from carrying babies to term.

"But beginning in the 1990s, a series of scandals over WHO-led vaccination programmes in the third world led to allegations that tetanus vaccines in places like the Philippines and Kenya were being laced with hCG in order to implement population control by stealth. The controversy generated by these stories led global institutions to step back from the campaign to champion population by vaccine.

"But, as usual, the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation were there to renew interest, working with the UK government to host a 'London Summit on Family Planning' in 2012 at which the Foundation announced their support for funding the research, development and deployment of injectable contraceptives to the developing world ...

[Quote here from Melinda Gates regarding injecting contraceptives into girls in Niger]

"In 2014 it was announced that Microchips Biotech, Inc., a company in Lexington, Massachusetts, had developed a new form of birth control:

'a wireless implant that can be turned on and off with a remote control and that is designed to last up to 16 years.'

"According to MIT Technology Review, the idea originated when Bill Gates visited Robert Langer's MIT lab in 2012 and asked him if it would be possible to create an implantable birth control device that could be turned on or off remotely. Langer referred Gates to the controlled release microchip technology he had invented and licensed to MicroCHIPS Biotechnology, and the Gates Foundation granted $20 million to the firm to develop the implants.

"Reducing population growth has, by Gates' own admission, been a core mission of the Gates Foundation since its inception. But in order to really understand what Gates means by 'population control', we have to look beyond the concept of controlling population size. At its most fundamental level, the 'population control' that Gates speaks of is not birth control, but control of the population itself.

"In order to understand the broader population control agenda and how it ties into the Gates Foundation's plans, we have to look at a puzzling development that took place in 2017. In that year, Gavi – the Gates' founded and funded alliance that partners the Gates Foundation, the World Health Organization and the World Bank with vaccine manufacturers to help ensure 'healthy markets' for vaccines – took a strange pivot away from its core mission of vaccinating every child on the planet to providing every child with a digital biometric identity ... Although vaccines and identity may seem unrelated, Bill Gates has spent the last few years funding research that can bring the two ideas together..."
